INCIDENTAL MUSIC

Incidental Music is a broadcast of mashed sourced audio material set to your manifestation of color in a black and white map of associations. For Radius, IM is a collection from the space of broadcast and an invitation to participate in an additive process through locations within the broadcast range and your participation in the visual completion of the colorless guide. A dual psychogeographic map and coloring news sheet is provided in conjunction with the broadcast to suggest and create shared experiences and present the possibility of the actual.

Please take crayons, markers, or any other materials you prefer and complete this radio listening experience by coloring in the imagery in this guide as you listen. Enjoy yourself, explore, and take a moment to have a new time.

Ryan ⊥ Dunn is a Chicago-based mediation and performance artist working in the medium of experience, as expressed through it all—bound up in fax and approx., appropriation and the real. At its best when it doesn't truly exist without you, ⊥ would present nothing at all if it would help. Overeducated ⊥ Anti-social, Unfinished ⊥ Total. Dunn is overly concerned with you and your expanded range—the people you talk to and the way you find the world, how you hear in your dreams, and see yourself somewhere, floating through it all, connected in memory and the joining of moments and minutiae.
